NEW MAGIC OF BUSINESS

Senator Aldrich Illustrates "Scientific Management" With Story of Lecture on Shakespeare.

Senator Aldrich was talking about "scientific management"—the new magic that is supposed to double the output of the bricklayer, the shoveler, the hod carrier and so forth.

"The bricklayer's motions," he said, "are reduced from 18 to 5 in the laying of each brick by scientific management, and the man can now lay 350 bricks an hour, whereas in England they only lay 375 bricks a day. Wonderful!

"It's as wonderful, in fact, as the Shakespeare story. A Lenten lecturer, you know, happened to say that Shakespeare died on the day of his birth. This caused an auditor to exclaim:

"Shakespeare must have understood scientific management, then! A genius that could turn out Othello and Hamlet and all the rest of it in an ephemeral 24 hours certainly must have had scientific management down pat!"

ANOTHER COOING PLACE

FOR THE SIMPLE LIFE.

There is an association in English society known as the Simple-lifers (not Simple-livers, if you please, for that sounds too much like a butcher's shop), which includes the duchess of Rutland, the Marchioness of Downshire, the Countess Kinnoull and the Countess of Warwick, H. B. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird. The society will shortly give an exhibition. Among the exhibits listed are boots of vegetable material that are said to last three times as long as those made from leather, and vegetable furs, said to be as warm and beautiful as those obtained from slaughtering animals.

NO CHANCE FOR HER.

Judging by the conversation of two girls on an elevated train almost everybody has some kind of a past that can be dug up.

"She wanted the worst way to play on our team," said the black-eyed girl, "but before accepting her we looked up her record in the school she attended before she came to us and we found that she lost about 15 pounds worrying over every examination that came along, and of course we couldn't afford to bother with a girl that fell off in weight like that."

JEWELRY POINTER.

A clerk in a New York jewelry store was being instructed by his new employer. "When a man comes in to buy a wedding ring always ask him if an engagement ring will be worn with it and what carat it is. The two should be the same. If the engagement ring is 18 carats, say, and the wedding ring is 14, as they rub together the softer ring will show the wear, and usually just under the stone, which becomes loosened. We have had to reset hundreds of diamonds for this very reason."

OF COURSE NOT.

"John, have you been disturbing the music? I cannot find 'The Lost Chord.'"

"Of course not. If you could it wouldn't be the lost chord."

Those Bad Spells.

Lebanon, Ky., May 11.—Mrs. Minnie Lamb, of this place, says: "I believe I would have been dead by now, had it not been for Cardui. I haven't had one of those bad spells since I commenced to use this medicine." Cardui is a specific medicine for the ills from which women suffer. Made from harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is a safe, reliable remedy, and has been successfully used by weak and ailing women for more than fifty years. Thousands of women have been helped back to health and happiness by its use. Why not profit by their experience? A trial will convince you that Cardui is just what you need.
